

New staff in the pipeline

new recruit for Pipefix

Dorset-based Pipefix, the water, sewage and drain service provider, is very pleased to announce the addition of a new member of staff to the ever-growing team.

Pipefix, which was established in 1981 by Wessex Water, has seen a steady increase in contracts over the last 18 months, culminating a prestigious contract being won with Kelda Water Services earlier in the year. With the growth of the company, Pipefix's Managing Director, Gary Butt, knew it was time to recruit a new member of staff.

James Sale joins the team as Assistant Operations Manager. James has a wealth of experience, having worked with companies such as Morrison Utilities, the Damar Group and Barhale Trant.

Prior to James' new role, he has worked his way up from an operational (hands on) role up to a supervisory level, gaining expertise in water distribution, sewage treatment and drainage projects, ideal for managing the kinds of projects Pipefix are bringing in.

James commented; "I'm delighted to be a part of the Pipefix team, this forward-thinking company embraces new technologies and methods. I'm looking forward to meeting businesses across Dorset that want to find out more about what we can do."
